

Varying openings draws attention to the opening clause or phrase. It's also a way to create cohesion in texts as it helps them to flow, avoiding repetition of 'the....'

Action: Stamping down the stairs,

Adverbials of time: Just then, All of a sudden,

Speech: "I'm going out," Sam shouted.

Hiding behind the tree,

In a flash,

"Help!" screamed....

A simple sentence stands alone. I went for a walk.

Varying sentence structure can take many forms:

-Two main clauses are joined with a conjunction
The bird ate a worm and it flew into the tree.

-A subordinate clause- it doesn't make sense alone. The commas separate the clauses.

When I saw the food, my tummy began to rumble.

Sam had many toy cars but then he lost them.

The subject and verb must match within a sentence; however, they may vary across a piece of work. For example, in a past tense narrative, direct speech may be present tense.

Past already happened	Present today or now
I was dancing yesterday in PE. Last week , I jumped over the bar.	I am going swimming today at school. I like to play catch.

Cohesive devices are words or phrases that make clear how the different parts of a text fit together. These are used within and across paragraphs to help them to flow. Some examples of cohesive devices are:

- Pronouns: refer back to earlier nouns used to avoid repetition.
 - Sam – he, the boy, his, him.
 - Aisha – she, her, the girl.
- Prepositions, conjunctions and adverbs: make relations between words clear. Before leaving, check... After lunch..., Finally...

Noun phrases expanded by the addition of modifying adjectives, nouns and preposition phrases. E.g. the teacher expanded to: the strict maths teacher with

An expansion of the noun with adjectives for description. evil beast small timid creature

Placed at the front of the sentence as a fronted adverbial and it is then followed by a comma. Gives information related to time, place or manner.

After much hesitation, the child leapt into the abyss and hoped for the best.

Staring at what was in front of him, he realised it wasn't as bad as he had first thought.

Apostrophes to mark singular and plural possession the girl's name is... the girls' names are the dog's paw is the dogs' paws are

-Use " " when a character starts and finishes speaking

-Start speech with a capital letter

-Punctuate within the speech marks this could be ! ? . or ,)

The conductor shouted, "Sit down!"

"Today I had chips for lunch," Sam told his mum.

A group of linked sentences about the same thing. Start the new paragraph on a new line when you are writing about a new idea, person, place or event. Paragraphs organise your work and show themes. Apply these within written work:

-Narrative: at least beginning, middle and end, however there will be others such as a change in setting or event in a longer story.

-Report writing: each new section with a new subheading

Heading = The title All about the Romans

Subheadings = Within the report - Roman Weapons The Empire

Year 4

- Vary sentence structure, using different openers. Use sentences of different forms including some sentence structures with more than one clause
- Use past and present tense correctly and consistently
- Use some cohesive devices e.g. co-ordinating and subordinating conjunctions, adverbs and prepositions (to express time and cause) and nouns and pronouns (for clarity and to avoid repetition).
- Use adjectival phrases (e.g. biting cold wind).
- Use appropriate choice of noun or pronoun.
- Use fronted adverbials and use a comma after each one (e.g. Later that day, I heard bad news.).
- Use apostrophe for singular and plural possession.
- Use commas to mark clauses.
- Use inverted commas and other punctuation to punctuate direct speech.
- Use paragraphs to organise ideas around a theme.
- Use connecting adverbs to link paragraphs.
